About the Faculty

The Present and Aims for the Future

The Faculty aims to become a leading institution in the fields of pre-school, primary school and special teacher education. In addition, we have BA and MA programs with strong foundations in our traditions of teacher training and art education. In line with the structural changes in the Hungarian higher educational system, the Faculty introduced a wide range of adult education and advanced vocational programme. In addition to delivering quality education, we aim at excellence in academic research, arts and sports activities.

The Past

The predecessor of our Faculty, Juhász Gyula Teacher Training College was established in 1873 in Budapest with the aim of training teachers for the contemporary elementary school system. This institution was Hungary's oldest teacher training establishment.

Due to the educational reforms introduced by Kuno Klebelsberg, Minister of Culture, teacher training programs from Kolozsvár (today is in Romania) were transferred to Szeged in 1928. As a result of his reforms, Szeged became a city of students and a vibrant intellectual centre of South Eastern Hungary.

In the decades that followed, the Hungarian educational system and teacher training underwent several changes. In 1973, in the centennial year, the College was given the name of Szeged's famous poet, Gyula Juhász.

In November 2006 the College was integrated into the University of Szeged as the Juhász Gyula Faculty of Education.
